Plant Construction

Taylor Wessing's Projects, Energy & Infrastructure team deals with the engineering and construction of industrial plants, focusing, inter alia, on renewable energies, chemicals, pharmaceuticals and all kinds of technologically complex projects nationally and internationally.

We support large-scale projects throughout their entire lifecycle, from the pre-contractual planning and development stage to negotiations and the conclusion of the relevant agreements to the construction and operation stage of the project including claims and variation management. If required, we also represent our clients in litigation proceedings before state courts as well as in national and international arbitration proceedings.
