the 1990s, the number of people in the world who are illiterate has increased from 400 million to 600 million.

It is not only the illiterate who are at risk of being left behind. The world's population is growing rapidly, and the number of people who are poor is increasing. In 1990, there were 1.2 billion people living on less than $1 a day. By 2000, there were 1.5 billion, and by 2010, there will be 2 billion.

The world's population is also becoming more diverse. There are now over 200 different languages spoken in the world, and the number of different ethnic groups is increasing. This diversity is a source of strength, but it also presents challenges for education.

Education is the key to solving these problems. It is the only way to ensure that everyone has the opportunity to improve their lives. Education is also the only way to ensure that the world is a better place for everyone.

Education is a right, not a privilege. It is a right that everyone should have, regardless of their background or their current situation. Education is a right that should be protected and promoted by governments and the international community.
